What publication numbers mean

Every DSHS publication has a publication number on the back.

Examples: DSHS 22-001(X) (Rev. 3/99)
DSHS 22-586 CA (Rev. 5/98)
DSHS 24-249 (3/99)

These numbers tell you about the publication. The first two numbers following the prefix (DSHS) indicate the type of publication:

DSHS 22 – publications, booklets, brochures, bookmarks, folders, etc.
DSHS 24 – posters
DSHS 26 – federal publications distributed in-state by DSHS

The next three numbers in the sequence identify a specific publication.

Examples: DSHS 22-001(X) (Rev. 3/99)
DSHS 22-586 CA (Rev. 5/98)
DSHS 24-249 (3/99)

The (X) means:

“(X)” – order from the DSHS Forms and Publications Warehouse.

No “(X)” – order from a program, NOT the Warehouse.

(See ordering instructions on p. v.)

Examples: DSHS 22-391(X) (2/00) ← with (X) – order from the DSHS Forms and Publications Warehouse

DSHS 24-249 (3/99) ←no (X) – order these publications from their programs

The publication date is shown in parentheses at the end.

There may be a two-letter code preceeding this date. These letters indicate that the publication is available in a foreign language. See p.vii for information about these codes.

“Rev.” stands for “revised.”

Examples: DSHS 22-001 (X) (Rev. 3/99) ← Published on these dates.
DSHS 22-650 (Rev. 1/00)
DSHS 24-249 (3/99)

About foreign language publications. . .

Some publication numbers show that a publication has been published in a foreign language. The foreign language translations of a publication have the same publication number as the English version, followed by an abbreviation of the foreign language name.

Examples: DSHS 22-586 (X) CA (Rev. 5/98) ← Cambodian translation
DSHS 24-019 (X) Summary (Rev. 7/96) ← English text AND translations in the same publication

Here are the abbreviations for the languages that are most often translated to:

CA	Cambodian	RU	Russian
CH	Chinese	SP	Spanish
KO	Korean	VI	Vietnamese
LA	Laotian	SUMMARY	All languages (including English) are included in one publication.

Some publications have been translated into additional languages. Check this catalog or contact the program that authored the publication for more information about translations of specific publications.
